50% want peace roles for troops

POLL A public opinion poll conducted for National Defence says half of Canadians surveyed want their soldiers to return to a "peacekeeping only" role in the world.

The Ipsos Reid research suggested there was "a small, but statistically significant increase," in the number of people who feel that way.

The figure edged up to 50 per cent of the 1,300 people surveyed last March, compared with 46 per cent of those asked in a similar survey in 2008.

Media blitz for economic plan estimated at $34M

The Conservative government is spending more than five times as many taxpayer dollars on promoting its economic plan as it is on raising public awareness about the flu pandemic.

And that's once again raising a long-standing question: When does government advertising cross the line into partisan boosterism?

All the ads direct viewers to a Tory-blue government website that includes more than 40 different photos of Prime Minister Stephen Harper and refers repeatedly to "the Harper government" — apparently in direct contravention of Treasury Board communications policy.

$6.5M

The Public Health Agency of Canada says it has a total marketing budget of $6.5 million to inform Canadians about the H1N1 virus and how to avoid infection.

The TV spots are just the latest $4-million salvo in a $34-million media blitz trumpeting the Conservative's recession-fighting budget.

Marketing experts say partisanship in government advertising is highly situational, ever-present and may or may not cross ethical lines.

Federal advertising guidelines speak vaguely of not promoting any political party or entity. Ontario, by contrast, began screening provincial government ads in 2004 under a strict law that attempts to stop partisan messaging.

Gift of giving made easier with text messaging

SunnySide

Pull out your cellphone, text a keyword and make a donation on the go.

Mobile giving capitalizes on the popularity of text messaging and is launching in Canada today.

"We thought this was a way to help new donors be charitable," said Bernard Lord, head of the Canadian Wireless Telecommunications Association.

It's aimed at younger people, who might not otherwise donate to charities, and lets them contribute small amounts at a time and get a tax receipt.

"In some cases, people can only give small gifts," Lord said. "They don't know how to do it and they don't want to write a cheque for $5 or $10, but they can give $5 or $10 through their cellphone."

Almost 100 million text messages are sent daily in Canada, Lord said.

Singer Alicia Keys raised thousands of dollars on American Idol by encouraging people to text $5 donations to help children with AIDS in Africa. It's also being used at concerts and sporting events to raise money.

"We think it will reach mostly a younger generation, the new generation coming up, the 20s or 30s, but it could be anybody," said Lord, the former Conservative premier of New Brunswick.

Donors text a numeric code and then a short word to give money via their mobile phones.

Trying out for the Leafs

Organization holds open auditions for game day anthem singer

Eight-year-old Sydney Wray may not be pugnacious or truculent, but she's still hoping she's got what it takes to get on the ice at a Maple Leafs home game this year.

And lucky for her Brian Burke wasn't one of the judges at the Leafs' anthem singer tryouts yesterday at the Air Canada Centre.

Wray joined 170 anthem-singing hopefuls of all ages and abilities as part of an open call for auditions by the hockey club.

"I'm a little nervous," Sydney said before getting her chance to sing.

The Clearmeadow Public School student already has some anthem-singing experience.

Last year she sang "O Canada" at a Newmarket Hurricanes Junior "A" game.

A Leafs fan, Sydney said she would love the chance to perform on a bigger stage.

"It would be really cool, but it would be nervous at the same time."

Pros and amateurs, kids and sexagenarians, sang their hearts out side-by-side in front of a panel of five judges, which included Paul Aikins, the head of music theatre at the Etobicoke School of the Arts; and Beverley Mahood, a country music recording artist and CMT host.

About 20 people from yesterday's tryout — held at the Hot Stove Lounge — will receive a call-back for a second audition, where they will sing at ice level, said director of game operations for the Maple Leafs, Mike Ferriman.

More than just strong singing ability, Ferriman said he and the other judges are looking for "someone who's going to fire up this building."

Five to 10 singers will then get a chance to sing. Anthem singers aren't paid for their performance, but they do receive two tickets to the game they sing at.

Buddhist temple re-opens after arson in May

OPENING As the sound of little voices chanting devotional hymns filled the Sinhalese Buddhist temple in Scarborough yesterday, a smile spread across the face of Sunday school teacher Lakmini Pinnaduwage.

"It's great to see all the kids here today," said Pinnaduwage.

Those in the city's Sinhalese community have been without their own place of worship since mid-May.

That's when, during the height of protests by local Tamils as Sri Lanka's civil war reached a climax, the Kingston Road temple was targeted by arsonists.

The overnight blaze, which caused about $150,000 in damage and is still under investigation, occurred days after the temple received threats from Tamils.

Yesterday, more than 300 people filled the newly restored Toronto Mahavihara Buddhist Meditation Centre for its official re-opening, which included a postponed Sunday school certificate ceremony.

Vaughan to consider election reforms

POLITICS Vaughan's city council, battered by a slew of post-campaign audits, is being asked to consider significant changes in how elections there are run — including prohibiting the use of money raised in previous campaigns and requiring candidates to disclose their donor lists before election day.

Those are among 19 recommendations by the Task Force on Democratic Participation and Renewal, a city-appointed group that has spent two years trying to figure out how to perk up citizen interest in municipal government.

In a city plagued by low voter turnouts and plenty of reasons for cynicism — given the raft of election-finance charges laid this year against sitting and former politicians — promoting engagement in politics is an uphill task.

It's unclear yet how Vaughan council will react to the proposals.

The provincial minister of municipal affairs is reviewing changes to the Municipal Elections Act and is expected to come forward with proposed changes this fall.

YWCA set to break new ground

Women's agency begins construction on downtown three-tower complex

As Canada's largest — and oldest — agency serving women and girls, you'd think the venerable YWCA would get some respect.

But when the Toronto office approached the banks for a $37 million loan to build the city's largest affordable housing project in a decade, the women hit a brick wall.

"We were a group of women in a room facing a group of men," recalls CEO Heather McGregor, who oversees the association's $23 million operating budget and 330 unionized staff. "When women are asking for money, the credibility issue is always there."

The banks never delivered.

But the YWCA is showing that women who work in social services can manage money and wear hard hats, too.

Tomorrow, McGregor will join Toronto Mayor David Miller and other supporters next to a 2,487-square-metre hole in the city's downtown core to formally launch construction of the YWCA Elm Centre.

The three-tower complex that will house the YWCA's local and national head offices also promises to be an environmental leader. It will include five green roofs, two rooftop gardens, energy-efficient electricity and one of the largest geothermal heating and cooling systems in North America.

Infrastructure Ontario, flush with federal funding, stepped up to the plate last year with a $37 million mortgage. Combined with $38 million in federal, provincial and municipal grants and loans, the YWCA was able to break ground on the ambitious project in January.

Don't rush vaccine to market: Expert

Flu Outbreak

PROGRAM A choir of voices is calling for Canada to speed up the start of its pandemic flu vaccination program. Interestingly, though, some of the country's leading public health and infectious diseases experts aren't singing the same tune.

A number of them say the benefits that might be gained from releasing pandemic vaccine under emergency use provisions may not be worth the risk of sowing distrust of the vaccine among members of the public.

"Because given it's a new virus vaccine, given it's an adjuvant we haven't used before, given the disease is relatively mild, I want to feel confident that when we roll out the vaccine that the checks and balances are in place and that we've got decent safety data and decent efficacy data before it goes out," said Dr. Michael Gardam, director of infectious diseases prevention and control at the Ontario Agency for Health Protection and Promotion.

City election race heating up

POLITICS With the 2010 mayoralty shaping up to be an exciting race with possible big-name candidates like George Smitherman and John Tory, some council races could be hot contests, too.

Among the contenders mentioned at city hall include Marilyn Churley, Doug Ford and Jane Pitfield. Churley, a popular former NDP MPP for Toronto-Danforth, started her political career at Toronto city council. While she won't run federally against Liberal MP Maria Minna in Beaches-East York, after two failed attempts, Churley isn't declaring her intentions just yet.

Traditions stay strong on Eid-ul-Fitr

RELIGION When Haroon Khan brought his mother and three younger siblings to Toronto from Pakistan in 1976, most of his friends were bachelors like him.

So every year his mother, Zafar Sultan, cooked up a storm to host 30 or 40 of their young friends for Eid-ul-Fitr, the celebration that marks the end of Ramadan, Islam's holy month of fasting.

The tradition continued even after Khan and his friends married, and after his mother died, to the point where Khan, a real estate agent and well-known community volunteer, hosts an open house that draws 450 people to his two-storey Mississauga home every year.

It's now in its 33rd year.

"This has to be the best Eid celebration in Mississauga, perhaps in Toronto," said Bonnie Crombie, the local member of Parliament, as she stood amongst a crush in Khan's foyer.

St. Clair's 'sea of concrete'

Right-of-way streetcar line a litmus test for TTC's Transit City plans

It's about two years behind schedule, has ballooned in cost by $10 million, and the construction has been interminable.

A highly publicized court challenge by opposed residents delayed it, and everyone from motorists to merchants, cyclists to firefighters, has had their beefs.

But by this time next year the entire 6-kilometre dedicated St. Clair streetcar line, from Yonge to just west of Keele Street, should be finished. The TTC and the city have touted the right of way as the wave of the future — the answer to a cry for more reliable transit service along a busy midtown corridor.

But will those promised gains be worth the pain?

Mayor David Miller is aggressively pushing his multi-billion-dollar Transit City plan, which calls for a network of seven new light-rail routes similar to St. Clair's, to roll out over the next several years.

ANDREW WALLACE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Patricia Raymond poses outside her store on St. Clair Avenue West. Raymond is a registered optician who operates Visual Appeal, an eyewear store located along the St. Clair streetcar right of way.

The aim is transit that's cheaper and quicker to build than subways and that, with raised curbs and limits on left turns, gets cars out of the way. The Sheppard East LRT, the first Transit City line, is to break ground within weeks.

So St. Clair has become a sort of litmus test.

Large sections are finished or near completion, but there's still fierce debate about its usefulness.

Optician Patricia Raymond, who operates an eyewear business on St. Clair, east of Avenue Road, doesn't believe the "devastating" construction work she endured was worth it. The section between Yonge and the St. Clair West subway station was completed in 2007 and runs in front of her store.

"The streets were so backed up (during construction) that it took an hour to drive here from a few blocks away. So people just didn't bother to come, and my business hasn't returned to normal yet," says Raymond, who has been operating there for 21 years.

"If you ask me if it was better before, I say yes." The right of way "is ugly and it just looks like a sea of concrete now," Raymond says.

Too much was sacrificed for what boils down to slightly improved service during rush hour but virtually empty streetcars the rest of the time, Raymond argues.

The TTC has no data yet to indicate how that completed section is performing, TTC chair Adam Giambrone said last week. Studies won't be available until sometime after the full line is operational.

Liberals go full steam ahead on HST

TAX Buoyed by an easy by-election win last week and emboldened by a largely incoherent opposition, the Liberals are aggressively pushing ahead with their controversial harmonized sales tax.

Stepping up efforts to sell the levy, which blends the 8 per cent provincial sales tax with the 5 per cent federal GST as of July 1, Premier Dalton McGuinty's government is framing it as a matter of "tax fairness."

"Ontario cannot afford to fall behind," said Revenue Minister John Wilkinson, who has been criss-crossing Ontario selling the reforms.

Dr. Eric Hoskins' by-election victory Thursday in St. Paul's — a vote opponents billed as an HST referendum — has boosted the Liberals' confidence about a tax that will increase the price of gasoline, home heating fuel, newspapers, fast-food value meals, funerals, legal services, and hundreds of other things. National child care plan urged VISION The co-author of a report on the state of early childhood education and care in Canada is calling for a national vision on child care — and the funding to back it up.

Provincial interest in early childhood education seems to be on the rise but funding continues to lag, said Martha Friendly, who helped write the eighth biannual report for the Childcare Resource and Research Unit, a policy and research facility, that was released Tuesday.

"There really seems to be, on the part of the provinces, a new recognition about early childhood education," said Friendly in an interview in Toronto.

Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia already have full-day kindergarten, while Ontario, B.C. and P.E.I. have promised to do so. THE CANADIAN PRESS

New deputy chief has soared up the ranks

POLICE His supporters — and there are a lot of them — say he is destined to be the city's first police chief of colour. His detractors — and yes, he has a number — criticize his rapid ascension through the ranks.

Love him or resent him, Peter Sloly is a rising star in the Toronto Police Service.

Peter Sloly

This week, with only 21 years on the force, Sloly will assume the rank of deputy chief, just one rung below Chief Bill Blair. At 43 years old, he is believed to be the youngest officer in the country to achieve such heights — an accomplishment that is both remarkable and a liability, said one high-ranking official.

"The traditional culture of policing is you come in and do your time. Now here's a young man, in his early 40s, who has become youngest deputy ever. It's a rank more typical of someone who has been around 30-35 years."

Sloly won the spot over five internal candidates. Police board chair Alok Mukherjee said the promotion is consistent with an ongoing shift within the force, where talented young officers are moving quickly up the ladder.

When asked about the critics, Sloly answers with a little humour, then a thoughtful observation — an approach you might expect from his boss and mentor, Chief Blair.

"Well, for one, I think I'm only a couple of years younger than the most powerful man in the free world," Sloly said from his office in police headquarters recently. "If you're required to be in a place for a certain amount of time, I guess I don't hit that benchmark. If it's about experiences, and adding value to help build the police service into the best it can be, then I think I hit that benchmark."

Sign of broader NDP strategy?

Party positioning itself as practical option: Analysts, insiders

The NDP feels it's gotten a bad rap.

After 10 days of intense political manoeuvring that brought the country to the brink of another election, Jack Layton's party has been pilloried by pundits, mocked by the Opposition, and forced to explain repeatedly why, after vigorously opposing the governing Tories for months, it has suddenly switched course.

But NDP insiders say they couldn't have played the week any better. They argue that they have seized a chance to reposition the party as a practical group of politicians that can improve the lot of their key constituents.

When the Tories introduced a tantalizing $1-billion boost to employment insurance last week, the NDP decided that not only would it support the measure, it would also prop up the Conservative government for as long as it takes to get the EI bill passed.

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

New Democratic Leader Jack Layton's support of the Tories to ensure a boost to EI benefits may be a sign that his party is moving away from opposing for opposition's sake, analysts say.

The events of the last week "are an example of Jack Layton trying to take a page from Darrell Dexter," said Anthony Salloum, program director at the Rideau Institute think-tank.

Salloum said Dexter, Nova Scotia's NDP premier, had a patient, pragmatic approach to politics when he was in opposition. He didn't oppose for opposition's sake, and would hold his nose and support measures that made sense. Gradually, he expanded his base that way, developing a reputation for being practical rather than partisan.

Man charged after infant son stabbed near eye

CRIME A 23-year-old man is in custody and will be charged after his infant son was found stabbed near the eye, Winnipeg police said yesterday.

The man, whose name was not released, will be charged with aggravated assault and assault with a weapon, said Const. Jason Michalyshen.

He said the child, in critical but stable condition, was attacked Saturday afternoon during a domestic dispute between the accused and his 29-year-old common-law wife.

"This argument escalated to the point where the suspect had armed himself with a metal object that was located in the residence. He swung it in the direction of the female and the child."

"The female was holding the child at the time. As a result, the child was struck with the object."

Michalyshen declined to give details on the weapon, saying the investigation is continuing.

The suspect has also been charged with failing to comply with previous court orders to stay away from the woman and her residence.

Moving tribute to troops

Father of slain soldier adorns truck with mural of son

After losing his son in Afghanistan, Raynald Bouthillier felt grief but also pride, and thought nothing less than a grand gesture would be a fitting tribute to the young soldier.

Trooper Jack Bouthillier was killed alongside Trooper Corey Hayes, both of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, in a roadside bomb blast March 20, an attack in which three other soldiers were injured.

Bouthillier's beaming face is now part of a wrap-around mural on one of the trucks in the fleet for his transport company, dedicated to Bouthillier and all the soldiers in Afghanistan. Desert scenes featuring soldiers, tanks and helicopters also adorn the vehicle. It's something his son would have loved, said Raynald Bouthillier.

"Jack was very, very pleased with everything me and his mom were doing to support him," Bouthillier said from his hometown of Hearst, Ont.

"He was always smiling when he was seeing us do things like that. So we said, 'If Jack was pleased with that support we're going to give an homage to all the guys who did that job and lost their lives."

On the back of the truck's cab is a list naming all of the Canadian soldiers killed in Afghanistan, and there is room for more. The death toll since the Afghanistan mission began is 131 soldiers, and Bouthillier said he will continue to add names.

"Every one of them until the war in Afghanistan is done," Bouthillier added of the soldiers.

"We really have to do something to show those guys that even if we're not there with them we're thinking of them and we're supporting them no matter what."

Protest at oilsands a wake-up call: Prof

SECURITY While the oilsands industry tries to calm any frayed nerves after a splashy protest by Greenpeace at a Shell work site in northern Alberta, some analysts say the infiltration of such a huge operation should serve as a warning about the security of energy installations.

If demonstrators can get into the site, so could terrorists intent on doing real damage, says Tom Flanagan, a University of Calgary political science professor and author of a report about groups opposed to development of Western Canada's resource sector.

"It does raise concerns," Flanagan says. "It would be wise to take this as a warning of the importance of reviewing procedures to make sure this kind of thing couldn't happen again." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Background

- About two dozen protesters from Canada, the United States and France gained access to Shell's Muskeg River mine site north of Fort McMurray, Alta., last Tuesday, chaining themselves to giant dump trucks and a four-storey-tall shovel that scoops oily sand from the pit.
- After spending 31 hours at the mine, the protesters left the site without charges laid.

News in brief

INVESTIGATION Police on Vancouver Island are trying to determine why an RCMP officer shot a 40-year-old man during a traffic stop in Chemainus. In a news release issued Saturday, RCMP said the shooting happened Friday night during what were described as "interactions" between the vehicle's two occupants and the two officers involved. Police say one officer's gun went off, striking the driver, who was outside of his vehicle. Police wouldn't elaborate on what the "interactions" entailed. "We've still got some witnesses that we'd like to speak to," RCMP Cpl. Darren Lagan said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stafford's father bikes 45 days for awareness

Tired, relieved and a little elated, Rodney Stafford pedaled into Edmonton Saturday, completing his 3,400 kilometre cycling journey in memory of his slain daughter Victoria.

Stafford's life was turned upside down in April when 'Tori', 8, was abducted and killed after leaving school in Woodstock, Ont.

His gruelling 45-day bicycle trip, where he averaged about 70 kilometres per day, has raised awareness about child abduction and helped him deal with some of the pain of his loss.

"It has put a lot of relief into me. I keep remembering all the good times with Victoria."
Rodney Stafford

"It has put a lot of relief into me," said Stafford. "I keep remembering all the good times with Victoria. It is like I am filling a void."

A knee injury 10 days before he started pedaling didn't hobble his progress. He only faced three days of rain in 45 days on the road, and his bike only suffered one flat tire.

During the long days on the road, his spirits were buoyed by the well-wishes of people who beeped their horns in support. But Stafford said what really propelled him along, kilometre after kilometre, were memories of his daughter. THE CANADIAN PRESS

RCMP to explain explosive email in Taser inquiry

BRAIDWOOD The public inquiry into Robert Dziekanski's death in October 2007 was supposed to be long over by now.

But that timeline was shattered three months ago when a previously unreleased email cast into doubt the testimony of the four RCMP officers who stunned Dziekanski with a Taser at Vancouver's airport and amplified allegations of a coverup.

The hearings resume Tuesday with testimony from senior Mounties at the centre of that exchange, which raised questions about whether the four officers arrived at the airport already planning to use a Taser. The officers have testified that they never uttered a word — not about the Taser or anything else — as they left their detachment to respond to a report of an agitated man throwing furniture.

The contradiction, which emerged as closing arguments were set to begin earlier this year, prompted inquiry commissioner Thomas Braidwood to reluctantly put the hearings on hold and scold the RCMP for failing to disclose the email sooner. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police briefly close Cornwall border crossing

DISPUTE The Seaway International Bridge, a temporary border crossing in Cornwall, Ont., was briefly shut Saturday amid a dispute between the Akwesasne First Nation and the Canada Border Services Agency. Akwesasne spokesman Brendan White said the bridge reopened Saturday afternoon after talks between the agency and the Mohawk band.

On Friday, the Mohawk Council of Akwesasne accused the agency of seizing vehicles and fining residents who failed to report to Canada Customs after coming to Cornwall Island from the U.S. White said "to do so would have required our community members to travel out of the way before going home." Still standing after another year

HineSight

metronews.ca/hinesight

Yes, readers, it's time once again for our annual "My life in review." Some people choose New Year's Day to stop to take stock, but if you ask me, there are two times you should never think about how life is going: a) when you're nursing a hangover; and b) when it's mid-winter in Canada. Which, frankly, feel pretty much the same.

Finances: My local banker has completed a thorough assessment of my financial position and says she's confident that I can retire on my 65th birthday and live in complete comfort. Just so long as I get hit by a meteor the day after. At the moment, my retirement savings are confined to whatever loose change is under the couch cushions. Obviously, it's time for me to adopt a clear, effective financial strategy and stick with it. The strategy I've decided on is called "denial." So, for "finances" I'm giving myself a C this year. It stands for "Could stand a little help."

Love/Relationships: Some insist that "long-term relationship" is an oxymoron. Much like "bad sex" or "too much coffee." As my partner, Liz, and I head into our second decade together, I've come to believe there are upsides and downsides to long-term relationships. The upside is living with someone who knows exactly what you're like. The downside is ... pretty much the same thing. For love/relationships, I'm giving myself a G. It stands for "Grateful."

Work/career: This year, I achieved what represents as total success in today's job market: I had one. Still, many of us hope for more. Buddha said, "Success is not happiness. Happiness is success. If you are doing what you love, you are successful." My version goes: "Paying the hydro bill is not happiness. But it helps." The perfect job is one that addresses both your dreams and your debt. I'm giving myself a B for career. It means, "Still a believer."

Wisdom: Liz's rule for life is, "Act with kindness and care, everywhere and with everyone. Except, of course, when you're playing hockey." I learned two important things this year. First, when the makers of allergy medication suggest you not take more than the recommended dosage, there really is a reason for this. And the only way to change your life is to change yourself.

Overall? I'm giving myself an A. It stands for Absolutely Still Standing. At least for another year.

More can be done for World Carfree Day

InTransit

Ed Drass

metronews.ca/intransit

Greater Toronto is a big place — so why is World Carfree Day so tiny? Cities around the world restrict traffic on many kilometres of roadway one day a year. Some even shut major streets every week to promote the idea that cities can be enjoyed — simply by walking and biking in areas normally reserved for driving.

Canadians happily fill streets when given the chance — look at Taste of the Danforth or any of Toronto's world-class events and parades. And yet GTA efforts to mark World Carfree Day tomorrow are modest and scattered. The City of Toronto and the Sierra Club host an event at Dundas Square. A short section of Yonge Street will be opened to the people. Mississauga is holding a bike race amid Smart Commute Week, and other GTA jurisdictions have contests.

I'm not suggesting the organizers of these local events should be taken to task or they're somehow not radical enough. You need the support of municipal councils — and often car-friendly road departments. That takes patience. It's the Canadian way, I suppose — a gradual, polite effort to remind everyone that driving is not always in our best interest. But if New York City can hand over a major road like Park Avenue to bikers and walkers for three Sundays a year, we can, too.

And commuters may need a more consistent message — it's time to coordinate World Carfree Day with "Clean Air Day" and the National Commuter Challenge — both held earlier in the year.

Sure, the whole idea of reducing car use provokes a few motorists to unreasonable anger; and there is a huge practical challenge: The GTA's transit systems are crammed during rush hour. But let's get serious and support the idea that our quality of life can improve when we drive less.

For local events, see www.smartcommute.ca/carfreeday — and also visit worldcarfree.net. If you already ride transit to work, why not use it tomorrow evening, too?

Toronto-based transport writer Ed Drass covers transit issues every Monday; transit@eddrass.com.

Mom, 5 kids slain

The husband of a woman found dead in a Florida apartment along with her five young children boarded a flight for Haiti, and police said yesterday the couple had a history of domestic violence calls to their homes over the past decade.

Mesac Damas, 33, who has family in Haiti, left Miami International Airport on Friday, said Collier County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Michelle Batten. Sheriff's officials said they want to talk to Damas, who is a person of interest. They were not calling him a suspect. The victims found Saturday were Guerline Damas, 32, and her children: Michzach, 9; Marven, 6; Maven, 5; Megan, 3; and 11-month-old Morgan.

Batten would not say how they died.

"In no uncertain terms, this is the most horrific and violent event this community has ever experienced," Sheriff Kevin Rambosk said.

Damas on Thursday night left Miller's Ale House in Naples, where he worked as a cook. His car was found at the airport and investigators were checking it for evidence.

Court records show Mesac Damas has prior charges for domestic violence against his wife. Roberts said that in January, Damas pleaded no contest to a misdemeanour battery charge against his wife.

No terror charges yet in arrests of 3

U.S. The arrest of a Colorado man on charges related to a terrorism investigation reveals a murky plot that involved him allegedly receiving explosives training with al-Qaida in Pakistan and downloading instructions on his computer on how to build bombs. But there's one thing missing at this point — actual terrorism charges. Najibullah Zazi was only charged with making false statements to the government. Zazi was arrested Saturday after undergoing three days of questioning by the FBI. Two other men, including Zazi's father, were also arrested.

For now, all quiet on the Western Front

AFGHANISTAN It's the Western Front.

There's a thin line of defence between this area of the sparesly populated Panjwaii district and the wild, wild west where the Taliban are pretty much free to roam at will.

To the east on the way to Kandahar city — villages are numerous and government forces with the aid of Canadian soldiers — spend their time keeping the Taliban at bay.

To the west — there are mountains and fields of bright green marijuana and pink opium poppies stretching as far as the eye can see. It is also a no man's land that Canadian and NATO soldiers stay clear of, at least for now.

"We don't have forces there so therefore it can be called a sanctuary for sure, but there's no added value to go there," Maj. Steve Jordain told The Canadian Press at Forward Operating Base Sperwan Ghar.

"We would be in almost continuous combat situations."
Brig. Gen. Jonathan Vance on moving Canadian troops westward

It's estimated the west contains only 10 to 15,000 residents while Kandahar city and its surrounding area have close to a half million.

It's only a matter of time before the footprint makes its way further west says the commander of Task Force Kandahar.

"It's a very sparsely populated area west of Sperwan Ghar so we have to pick our battles and we have to ensure we maintain our aim of interacting with the population," explained Brig. Gen. Jonathan Vance.

"We will push to the west eventually, at some point."

Vance said there's no doubt that his forces could venture further west in an effort to find pockets of Taliban and the idea is not without merit.

"We would be in almost continuous combat situations which would certainly have an effect on degrading the insurgencies potential to export violence, so there is some of that which needs to happen," he said.

Two participants in therapy session die

Doctor acknowledges giving patients drugs

A doctor leading a group therapy session gave participants drugs and other substances that killed two and left 10 hospitalized, Berlin police said yesterday. One person was left comatose and in critical condition.

The doctor who led the session has acknowledged giving the participants various substances and drugs during the meeting, a spokesperson for the prosecutor's office said. It was not clear whether illegal drugs were given and whether they were injected or taken orally.

Police said the session took place in a house north of Berlin. The 50-year-old doctor who worked there was detained and a homicide division was investigating the case, police said.

"During the session, which lasted several hours, he supposedly gave the patients various kinds of substances and drugs that initially led to reactions like nausea and vomiting," the statement said.

When the symptoms got worse, one of the participants called emergency services, it said.

When police and ambulance cars arrived, they found twelve people who appeared to have been severely poisoned, it said.

Two men died that night and nine were hospitalized, police said. One patient was still in critical condition.

Medvedev: Israel 'not planning' to attack Iran

Russian President Dmitry Medvedev says Israeli officials have assured him that they are not planning a military strike on Iran.

In an interview broadcast yesterday, Medvedev also confirmed that Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu made a secret visit to Moscow this month that included a meeting with the Russian president.

In a transcript of the interview released by the Kremlin, Medvedev hedges on the question of whether Russia would support Iran if it were attacked by Israel.

Although Russia has no defence agreement with Iran "this does not mean we would like to be or will be indifferent to such an occurrence. This is the worst thing that can be imagined," Medvedev said of a potential Israeli strike.

"But my Israeli colleagues told me they were not planning to act in this way, and I trust them," Medvedev said.

SETTLEMENT Oil-trading company Trafigura said yesterday it has agreed to a settlement with people who claim they fell ill after a tanker dumped hundreds of tons of waste around the Ivory Coast. A spokeswoman for the company said it will pay 950 pounds ($1,546) per person but denied the toxic waste has caused serious harm. Trafigura said in a statement that the waste from the tanker could have caused "low level flulike symptoms and anxiety." It said there was no evidence the waste caused deaths, miscarriages, stillbirths, birth defects or other serious conditions.

Too Good to Be True – The Rise and Fall of Bernie Madoff

Author: Erin Arvedlund
Publisher: Portfolio
Price: $32.50

Financial jargon for the most part falls on deaf ears when dealing with the general public, but one term that has come to be top of mind is the Ponzi scheme, now about as synonymous with Bernie Madoff as Kleenex is to tissues. Author Erin Arvedlund is no stranger to the Madoff saga. In fact, she published an article in Barron's Magazine in 2001. She first became interested in Madoff's hedge fund due to the very high and consistent returns the fund promised. Despite the questions and concerns raised in the article, the SEC did not investigate at the time. Arvedlund attempts to piece together the full tale of Madoff and how he ended up veering from a successful and legitimate investment firm to the largest fraudster of our time.

TSX still on the rise

Analysts worry about rally's length, strength

There doesn't seem to be anything to stop the Toronto stock market from racking up further gains this week, extending a rally that has shown no sign of letting up for seven months, but analysts worry the move has left the market open to a pullback.

Analysts warn of a sense of growing complacency amid some serious headwinds, and near the top of the list is the eventual withdrawal of the government stimulus that has supported much of the economic growth seen this year. Andrew Pyle, investment adviser at ScotiaMcLeod in Peterborough, said it worries him that the market is acting like stimulus will be around for a long time.

Auto sales numbers for September could give investors a good idea of what a withdrawal of stimulus looks like as those sales will not be boosted by the U.S. government's Cash for Clunkers program, which sent auto sales soaring during the summer.

Used car demand drives prices up

Increasing demand and plummeting supply have pushed used car prices in Canada steadily higher since last summer, a trend that is only expected to continue over the coming years, industry players say.

The manager of an independent used-car dealership in Oshawa said he was able to buy a "decent," three- or four-year-old van at auction for $6,000 last year. The same van would cost him $7,000 today. Several factors have combined in the last year or so to restrict supply in the used vehicle market, auto industry analyst Dennis DesRosiers said.

"We're only at the earliest stages. It's going to get a lot worse."
Auto analyst
Dennis DesRosiers

Fleet sales, which are primarily made to car rental agencies, began to fall over the last couple years as the rental market softened, said DesRosiers.

Another key supply of used vehicles virtually disappeared this year when credit markets froze, making it difficult for consumers to lease new vehicles.

DesRosiers cautioned that the full impact of this lack of supply won't be felt for another two or three years.

"We're only at the earliest stages," he said. "It's going to get a lot worse."

CAMI, union reach deal

The Canadian Auto Workers union has reached a tentative agreement with CAMI Automotive to reduce costs at the joint venture of General Motors and Suzuki in Ingersoll.

The deal, reached early Saturday, comes after three weeks of negotiations and four months after the union struck a cost-cutting agreement with General Motors Canada.

CAW president Ken Lewenza says a critical part of the agreement is GM and Suzuki's commitment to a manufacturing footprint for the CAMI facility.

He says that will go a long way to ease the terrible uncertainty of the past year or more at CAMI.

The approximately 2,250 workers were to vote on the deal yesterday.

In the small town of Ålesund in Norway, people have been introduced to a secret about weight loss that made over 1500 of them lose weight. The man behind the secret is a health food storeowner, who discovered a new and innovative way of using mulberries.

A CUSTOMER ASKED FOR ADVICE

It all began a summer day in 2006 when a customer of Johnny Pettersen asked him for advice about how to eliminate sugar cravings; "I gave my customer a box of New Nordic's Mulberry leaf tablets, because mulberry is well known to lower your blood sugar after meals. When blood sugar is stable, sugar cravings disappear. It worked very well!"

THE MULBERRY DIET!

"I recommended mulberry to many of my customers and soon noticed that they were losing weight. This made me curious, so I studied the effect of mulberries on blood sugar, insulin and fat burning. Surely enough, because of the effect on blood sugar, mulberry leafs also lead to a lower insulin secretion, which makes you able to burn stored fat better and also reduces fat storage from excess calories.

I increased the dosage and now started recommending two mulberry tablets before each meal. It worked better than I expected! My customers not only controlled their sugar cravings, but also lost significant amounts of weight." says Johnny, and continues: "I recommend customers to follow the program for a minimum of 10 days, in order to also eliminate their need for sugar stimulation. Sugar works as a drug on the brain and people need to eliminate the need for a sugar high, if they want to stay slim. With mulberry my customers changed to a healthier diet without even noticing it – they simply didn't crave sugar."

1500 CUSTOMERS LOST WEIGHT

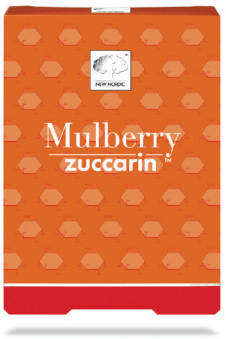
After the success of the first customers, word traveled fast; "In the last 12 months I have worked with over 1500 customers in Ålesund and the surrounding area. Mulberry has been a tremendous success. Once my customers try the tablets they come back, often with friends and family, and buy 4-6 packages at a time – not just one. It is a great business, but even more rewarding because I see my customers coming back happy, healthy and slim", Johnny explains.

AN OLD JAPANESE TRADITION

For centuries, the Japanese have enjoyed the health benefits from mulberry leaf teas, and today we know from clinical studies how mulberry leaves regulate blood sugar levels. For dieters, this means a lower production of insulin after eating carbohydrates. Insulin is responsible for storing excess calories as fat and for shutting down fat burning. Too much insulin is a dieter's worst enemy!

NOW IN CANADA

Scandinavian manufacturer New Nordic has recently launched a mulberry product in Canada, called Mulberry Zuccarin™. The tablets have been developed in Japan in collaboration with mulberry farmers, botanical experts and a reputable Japanese university hospital outside of Tokyo. Each tablet contains 400 mg of pure mulberry leaf extract.



Mulberry Zuccarin™ is now available in Canada at participating:
Loblaws, Superstores, Zehrs, Extra Foods, Zellers, Shoppers Drug Mart, Rexall, PharmaPlus, GNC and health food stores.

Our children have the most to lose

EarthTones

Sophia Dore & Andrew Laursen

metronews.ca/earthtones

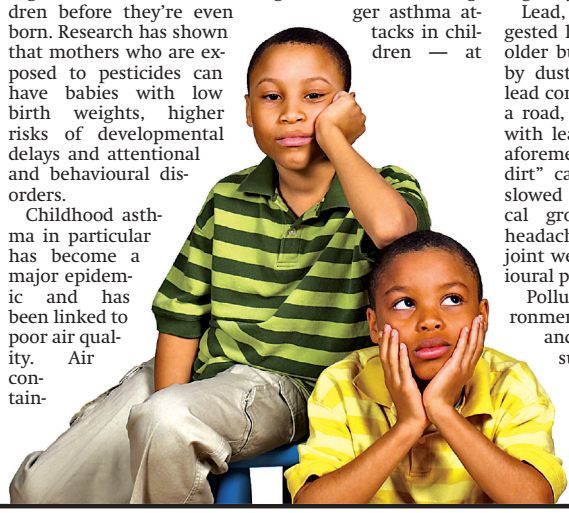
Our friend's little girl, Joelle, is sick. She is in the hospital. Late at night, as we rock our baby to sleep after a night feed, we think of what our friends are going through and our hearts ache for them as we are grateful that our daughter is healthy. Thinking about our friend's child and her illness, though not caused by environmental factors, got us thinking about how vulnerable millions of children are to the hazards of this dirty world we have brought them into.

Fetuses and young children are more vulnerable for several reasons: Their biological defence mechanisms are still forming, and they are can't detoxify harmful substances and repair damage the way adults can. Children also eat more food, drink more liquids, and breathe more air than adults on a pound-for-pound basis.

The old saying goes that a child has to eat a peck of dirt, but what if that dirt contains harmful chemicals? Children are in a critical period of development, and toxic exposures can profoundly hurt them.

Pesticides on fruits and vegetables can affect children before they're even born. Research has shown that mothers who are exposed to pesticides can have babies with low birth weights, higher risks of developmental delays and attentional and behavioural disorders.

Childhood asthma in particular has become a major epidemic and has been linked to poor air quality. Air containing large amounts of particulate matter as well as high ozone levels can trigger asthma attacks in children — at greater risk are kids living in urban areas or near highways.



Lead, a commonly ingested hazard, is found in older buildings, and nearby dust can have a high lead content. If soil is near a road, it can be polluted with leaded gasoline. The aforementioned "peck of dirt" can therefore cause slowed mental and physical growth as well as headaches, muscle and joint weakness and behavioural problems.

Pollutants in the environment such as mercury and flame retardants such as PCBs and PDBEs can end up in our food. A common source of these substances is fish from contaminated waterways. Fetal and childhood exposure to these chemicals can affect neurological development.

A major factor in the exposure of children to these health-threatening pollutants is the income bracket they happen to be born into. Lower income children tend to live closer to industrial areas, highways, and in older buildings. They and their mothers may also consume lower quality food that may be more subject to contamination.

We owe it to these kids to clean up our act and give them clean air to breath and clean food (and dirt) to eat. Get well soon, Joelle.

Sophia Dore is an environmental scientist with Conestoga-Rovers & Associates. Andrew Laursen is an assistant professor at Ryerson University; earthtones.metro@gmail.com.

Wake up the world to climate change

SOFI PAPAMARKO
for Metro Canada

You could spend today's lunch hour in a food court, making tedious small talk with co-workers. Or you could make a massive political statement.

Today is the Global Climate Wake-Up Call, an international day of action that will prompt hundreds of thousands of citizens all over the planet to come together for five-minute flash mobs — all in the hopes of grabbing the attentions of world leaders ahead of the Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen this December.

Greg Boyle is the national director of the Sierra Youth Coalition and the organizer of today's Parliament Hill Wake-Up Call in Ottawa, which will include participants forming a human clock.

"Global leaders have only three months to get their act together and sign a strong climate treaty in Copenhagen," Boyle explains via email. "We need to show the government of Canada that we are sick of their inaction. By making a human clock, we are making it clear that the countdown is on. We are running out of time."

Julia Morgan, a freelance writer, was driven to organize a Wake-Up Call in Toronto after she literally lost sleep over climate change: "That sounds a bit crazy, I realize ... I realized later that climate change is really not that external and it's really not that far away. It's going to affect a lot of us a lot sooner than we think."

At Morgan's event, participants are encouraged to wear business attire to symbolize that climate change is everyone's business. The flash mob will involve alarms, noisemakers, stunts and calls placed to political leaders. Then, the event will dissipate as quickly as it began.

"We're all in this together," she says. "We all have to come together with a solution. There is no time for any delay. It has to happen now."

Real Madrid in deep debt

Real Madrid said yesterday that its debt had risen to approximately $514 million, but added it plans to cut the figure to $330 million by next June. Announcing its accounts at its annual assembly, Madrid said its debt has arisen largely through an investment of $494 million, most of which was spent on new players since June. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FOOTBALL Donte Whitner returned an interception 76 yards for a touchdown and Terrell Owens — after being negated most of the game — scored on a 43-yard catch in his home debut to cap a 33-20 win over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers yesterday.

Whitner also made a key stop on fourth down less than a week after he was left crying in frustration after the Bills squandered an 11-point lead in a 25-24 season-opening loss at New England.

Buffalo (1-1) ended a five-game home losing streak. The Buccaneers (0-2) have lost six straight and continue to struggle on defence after allowing 438 yards.

Before Owens' touchdown, Lee Evans opened the scoring with a 32-yard touchdown reception. Tampa Bay allowed three TDs of 40 yards or more against Dallas.

Leafs searching for Kessel's centreman

It took Matt Stajan all of about one second to answer the question.

The question? Would you like to centre a line with Phil Kessel once the newest Leaf and 36-goal scorer from a year ago returns from rehabbing his shoulder surgery (about mid-November)?

"Well, sure ... anytime you have a guy who scores 36 goals, yeah, that's the guy you'd want to play with," Stajan said.

Phil Kessel

Since Kessel landed with the Leafs after a Friday trade with Boston, there's been a whirlwind of speculation about who the 21-year-old sniper might be paired with.

When Kessel donned the Leafs jersey for the first time Saturday, posing for the cameras, he couldn't wipe the smile off his face.

Leafs GM Brian Burke said, "put on a mean face or something," to which Kessel replied, "I'm trying, but I can't."

Eventually, the thoughts returned to who would centre a line with Kessel.

The easy answer was Stajan, who had a career high in assists last season and also led the Leafs in that department.

The Leafs have not had a 36-goal scorer since Mat Sundin netted 37 in 2002-03. But Sundin was himself a centre — which raises the question — is it possible for Kessel to make the switch?

There had been talk in Boston that Kessel could be entertaining that thought himself.

Kessel played centre almost exclusively throughout his development. He speaks highly of his early career, playing with the Madison Capitols in his Wisconsin hometown, where he was a scoring phenom, mirroring the scoring totals Wayne Gretzky posted as a young boy in Brantford.

The Capitols were coached by Bob Suter, a member of the 1980 U.S. Miracle on Ice team that won the Olympic gold medal at Lake Placid.

Though it is early yet, the Leafs have been mum as to who they see centring Kessel or whether they see the forward as a centre himself.

It's believed Stajan and John Mitchell — who are both having excellent camps — have the strongest chance.

By this time next season, the leading candidate for the Kessel pivot job could be Nazem Kadri. The 18-year-old is expected to be returned to junior later this week, but his strong showing so far in camp has led to talk that he could one day fit nicely into the Kessel puzzle.

TFC still slumping despite JDG debut

SOCCER Canadian international Julian De Guzman made his much-anticipated debut for the Toronto FC Saturday night, but it wasn't enough to knock his club out of its scoring slump.

TFC fell 2-0 to the Los Angeles Galaxy, who were led by a goal and an assist from English soccer star David Beckham.

Toronto (9-10-7) is tied with New England for fourth in the East with 34 points, two behind D.C. United for the eighth and final playoff berth. The top two teams in each conference and the clubs that have the next four highest point totals qualify for the playoffs.

The numbers for TFC have been dismal. It is winless in its last six road games, has won only one of its last five games and has scored only three times in the last month.

The club has four games left in the regular season, beginning in Chicago against the second-place Fire Saturday night.

Chelsea still perfect

Blues alone atop EPL; Man U wins in stoppage

Chelsea beat Tottenham 3-0 to make it six wins in a row yesterday and Michael Owen scored Manchester United's winner in the sixth minute of injury time in a 4-3 thriller over Manchester City.

Ashley Cole, Michael Ballack and Didier Drogba kept Carlo Ancelotti's Chelsea three points clear at the top of the Premier League with 18 points as the Blues maintained their perfect start against a Spurs side which has now lost twice in a row.

Leftback Cole scored with a diving header in the 32nd minute and Ballack scrambled the ball home in the 58th after Drogba's initial shot had been saved. Drogba rolled the ball into an empty net in the 63rd after outpacing Vedran Corluka.

Man City manager Mark Hughes watched his side rally three times at Old Trafford to make it 3-3 going into injury time and was furious at the amount of time added on by the officials before Owen scored the winner.

Wayne Rooney's second-minute goal was cancelled out by Gareth Barry after United 'keeper Ben Foster had lost possession on the edge of his area to City's Carlos Tevez, who was playing against United for the first time since his off-season move.

Darren Fletcher regained United's lead with a header but Craig Bellamy equalized again with a drive into the roof of the net.

Louis Saha scored twice as Everton outplayed Blackburn 3-0 to move out of the relegation zone and Wolves beat Fulham 2-1 with goals by Kevin Doyle and David Edwards.

Work ethic, passion drive entrepreneur

"I've never read a business book on how to get rich. It ultimately comes down to being passionate about what you do."
Entrepreneur
Abby Tobias

President of the event company Sole Power productions Abby Tobias has built a name for himself as an entrepreneur and an avid philanthropist.

Abby Tobias is proof that youth and inexperience don't have to be an obstacle to achieving success in the entrepreneurial world.

The 30-year-old president of event company Sole Power Productions has spent seven years helping produce events for the likes of the Molson Indy, YTV awards, Much Music Video Awards, the CHIN picnic and the Grey Cup and he also donates his time and resources regularly to charity events and foundations.

Tobias started DJing when he was 15 and struck big success at age 17 when he started managing a group of dancers called Boogie Brats.

"I never had a real job. I was doing $50 gigs and I was in heaven. I thought I was rich," Tobias said.

At the age of 23, he started Sole Power Productions in his mother's basement with a few thousand dollars, contracting out DJs to high-profile events. Today, Sole Power produces more than 300 events per year.

Alongside his love of music, Tobias always had a powerful entrepreneurial spirit that he credits for being the driving force in his life.

"I was never money-hungry but I'm definitely success-hungry — I never wanted to be second-best at anything I did. I work harder than most people and I think that's why I have success," Tobias said.

Tobias has a degree in Radio and Television from Ryerson University and says he's learned business is all about passion and perseverance.

"I've never read a business book on how to get rich. It ultimately comes down to being passionate about what you do. My passion drives me — I'm that guy that doesn't go to sleep until the day's work is done," he said.

Tobias has worked with charities like the Pencer Brain Trust and POGO, which provide relief and resources for people living with brain tumours and other cancers. He produced Breakin' for Cancer in 2007, which raised $40,000 for cancer research and created the Guinness World Record for the longest break dancing circle (24 hours).

He also started a charity program at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children that provides musical instruments to kids in need and he frequently donates to the Israel Emergency Fund on behalf of clients.

It's all part of Tobias' belief in good karma.

"I think if you're good to others then they'll be good to you," he said.

Recently Tobias was a presenter on the hit show Dragon's Den, where inventors and owners looking for investors present their business ideas to wealthy judges. While he can't say what his episode, airing sometime in October, is about, he admits he felt a little jealous being on the defensive end of the business table.

"I joked with one of the producers that I don't want to be on Dragon's Den, I want to be a Dragon!"

Being at the top does not stop harassment

MAT LECOMPTE
for Metro Canada

Sometimes having a top-notch job can come at heavy price. Especially if you're not part of the boys' club.

It's no secret that sexual harassment in the workplace exists, but what is surprising is where it's directed. A recent Globe and Mail article revealed that almost 50 per cent of women in positions of power reported experiencing sexual harassment in the workplace — a number much higher than those in non-management positions.

"This makes sense in terms of what we know," said Louise Ripley, York University professor of Business and Women's Studies, "that power is at the root of the harassment. It's not about sex."

Ripley, who teaches a Gender Issues and Management course, told Metro that men often respond to women in power by trying to bring them down. Doing so, she says, is an attempt to reduce their power and establish dominance and boundaries in the workplace. Sexuality is often the approach men take to stake out their position.

Almost 50 per cent of women in positions of power reported experiencing sexual harassment in the workplace.

It's true, of course, that it's not just women in managerial positions who face harassment. It's just a different kind. The harassment faced by women in higher positions is more subtle, she says, that is not overtly sexual in nature.

She says that women in non-managerial positions do not provide as much of a power threat to male employees, so they are less susceptible to certain types of harassment. However when they are subject to harassment, support systems are thin.

"Women at the lowest level can be threatened without repercussion," Ripley explained.

The lack of repercussion comes from limited support systems. For example, there are often not many women in power for them to turn to help or advice.

Ripley, however, maintains a positive outlook for the situations women face in the workplace at all levels of employment. As time passes and more men and women work together in university courses and other areas, they are able to form relationships based on respect and understanding, she said.

She also mentioned that as increasing numbers of women are employed in management positions it becomes less of a novelty, which should reduce the harassment levels women are currently exposed to.

An electrifying profession

Lightning expert dishes on his studies of the CN Tower, which gets struck 100 times a year

OddJobs

Diane Peters

Metronews.ca/oddjobs

Lightning can strike more than once in the same spot. Ali Hussein has built a career on this little known truth. He's been measuring lightning strikes on Toronto's CN Tower for 20 years. Since it hits the tower about 100 times a year, there's lots to study.

Originally from Egypt, Hussein studied electrical engineering there. He got a scholarship to study abroad at the University of Toronto and came to Canada to do his PhD in electromagnetics.

When he finished in 1979, he worked in Saudi Arabia doing research for two years, then decided to immigrate back to Canada, since thing were so troubled politically in the Middle East. (He had to pay back his scholarship to the Egyptian government.)

By then, Cold War was in full swing and he found work with Bell Northern, studying electromagnetic pulses. There was a concern, back then, that a pulse could be used to disrupt communications as part of an attack.

But he missed academia. "My best field is teaching and research," says Hussein. He got a position at Ryerson and the University of Toronto, and found himself working with Wasl Janischewskyj, who had been measuring lightning strikes on the CN Tower since 1988.

He's now retired and Hussein is in charge of getting new equipment, organizing grad students to organize the data collected from the tower, writing academic papers and attending conferences — along with his teaching duties at Ryerson.

When Hussein first started measuring lightning, he and grad students would visit the CN Tower late at night, when there was little telecommunications activity so things could be shut down, and would climb up inside the tower above its highest observation deck. They'd scale ladders up into the needle-like tip of the tower to check on their equipment.

Now, the rules have changed and the tower staff do all the maintenance. Right now, Hussein has an electromagnetic measurement system, a GPS (which helps them not measure position, but the time of the lightning), a video camera and a digital camera — which takes 1,000 pictures per second — up in the tower.

Hussein's published data has helped further the understanding of lightning. This information is useful not just for academics, but for engineers who need to know how lightning-safe they need to build things.

And Hussein also says it's part of his job to help educate the public about lightning safety. "Lightning is fascinating, but it's also dangerous."

The Lowdown

Job title: Lightning expert and researcher
Salary: About $100,000
Education/training: PhD in electrical engineering or electromagnetics
Best Part of the Job: "I really like teaching. Ever since I started working with the CN Tower, my love of research has been competing with my original love for teaching."
Worst Part of the Job: "Being busy. That's why none of my six children decided to go into engineering."

Diane Peters once hawked magic pens at the Canadian National Exhibition. She's now a writer and part-time journalism instructor.

Baldwin and Collette the funniest

30 Rock and United States of Tara stars honoured for comedic TV talent

Alec Baldwin of 30 Rock and Toni Collette of United States of Tara were honoured as best lead actors in comedy series at last night's Emmy Awards, which kept to a lightheart-ed, viewer-friendly tone.

"I'll be honest with you. I'd trade this to look like him," Baldwin said as he accepted his best comedy actor trophy from Rob Lowe of Brothers & Sisters.

Collette, who plays a mother with multiple personalities on the Showtime series, was honoured as best actress in a comedy series.

"Wow, this is insanely confronting," said a beaming Collette. She thanked series creator Diablo Cody, the Oscar-winning screenwriter of Juno.

Collette's victory deprived Tina Fey of 30 Rock of winning a second consecutive award in the category. But Fey took the stage a few moments later to acknowledge a guest actor award she received for her Sarah Palin impersonation on Saturday Night Live.

Kristin Chenoweth of Pushing Daisies and Jon Cryer of Two and a Half Men won supporting acting Emmys for their comedies and proved that acceptance speeches can be entertaining.

"I'm not employed now so I'd like to be on Mad Men. I also like The Office and 24," said Chenoweth, alternating between tears and smiles as she accepted for her cancelled ABC series. "Thank you so much to the academy for recognizing a show that's no longer on the air."

Actress Toni Collette accepts the outstanding lead actress in a comedy series award for United States Of Tara last night during the 61st Primetime Emmy Awards at the Nokia Theatre in Los Angeles.

Backstage, the Tony Award-winning Chenoweth noted that she is appearing on an upcoming episode of Fox's show Glee, has shot two movies and is doing a series of concerts.

Cryer, whose series is the most-watched comedy on TV, brought a wry tone to his speech.

"I used to think that awards were just shallow tokens of momentary popularity, but now I realize they are the only true measure of a person's worth as a human being," Cryer said.

"I see legends galore, Lange, Barrymore," Harris sang to Jessica Lange and Drew Barrymore, later adding, "But like next season on Idol I'm not seeing Paula Abdul."

Emmys add nominees to increase viewership

Meanwhile, the camera panned to an empty seat at the Nokia Theatre.

Harris' winning turn as host was noted by Jeff Probst, honoured as best reality show host for CBS' Survivor. Probst was one of the five reality hosts who shared MC duties at the Emmys last year and received scathing reviews.

"Neil Patrick Harris, this is how you host the Emmys. Nice job," Probst said, pointing his Emmy toward him.

The Amazing Race won its seventh consecutive Emmy in the outstanding reality-competition category, once again turning top-rated American Idol into an also-ran.

An exception to the upbeat mood came in clips from animated series Family Guy, which showed the dog character Brian beaten bloody, followed by a reality show snippet with barely concealed swearing.

In a bid to give viewers reasons to stick with the show, CBS put advisories on-screen of upcoming moments, including Justin Timberlake's appearance as a presenter.

Mad Men had the chance for a second consecutive best-drama trophy. Potential trailblazer Family Guy was the first animated series to vie for the best comedy award since a 1961 bid by The Flintstones.

The Fox show was up against last year's winner, actress-writer Fey's 30 Rock, trying for its third consecutive award in the category.

The TV academy, meanwhile, hoped to avoid an unwanted rerun at the 61st Annual Primetime Emmy Awards: paltry viewership. The 2008 ceremony was the least-watched ever with an audience of 12.3 million.

Acclaimed but low-rated series like AMC's retro 1960s show Mad Men are seen as one reason viewers bypassed the awards, so major categories were expanded to increase the odds for more popular fare. There were as many as seven nominees per category, compared with the traditional five.

Rising network star Jim Parsons of CBS' The Big Bang Theory made the cut for best comedy series actor, but niche premium cable shows including HBO's Flight of the Conchords and Showtime's Weeds grabbed a hefty share of nods.

Leonard Cohen

Leonard Cohen recovering after collapse

PEOPLE Canadian singer-songwriter Leonard Cohen is recovering after collapsing onstage while on tour in eastern Spain late Friday, his music company said Saturday.

The veteran poet and performer has been released from hospital after suffering from a stomach complaint, Doctor Music Concerts said in a statement.

Cohen was part-way through his Bird on the Wire song in Valencia when he fainted, causing the band to stop playing to rush to his aid as concert-goers watched. The concert was stopped.

A video showing Cohen kneeling down several times during the performance and then keeling over sideways during a saxophone solo has been placed on YouTube by a fan.

Cohen, who turns 75 years-old today, was taken in an ambulance to the Nueve de Octubre hospital in Valencia but was released early Saturday.

Cohen had to come out of retirement five years ago when he discovered that most of his retirement fund had disappeared in a disputed case of mismanagement.

Polaris up for grabs

Ten acts vying for prestigious music prize tonight with no clear favourite

It's common for artists to be gracious when it comes to accepting award nominations, but when Hey Rosetta! was shortlisted for the Polaris Music Prize this year, they took their humility a step further.

The St. John's, N.L., band's frontman Tim Baker said he was shocked because he didn't think their record was "worthy."

"I guess we just never thought of ourselves in that sort of league — the real recording artists that really kind of push the boundaries, artistically," Baker said.

"Maybe, perhaps a little bit deludedly, I think we're really kind of humble in our music, playing little tunes."

Not long ago it might have seemed a bit strange for a band to feel unworthy of the prize, but this is the year that a class of Polaris veterans has emerged.

For the first time in the award's brief history — Final Fantasy nabbed the inaugural prize in 2006 — this year's short list includes artists who have been nominated before.

Of the 10 bands or artists vying for the $20,000 prize, to be handed out at a Toronto gala tonight, six have been shortlisted before, including 2007 winners Patrick Watson.

Halifax singer/songwriter Joel Plaskett, up for his ambitious triple album Three, Toronto new-wave band Metric, Toronto hip-hop artist K'naan, Montreal francophone indie-rockers Malajube and Calgary indie pop experimentalist Chad VanGaalen are the other artists shortlisted for a second time for the prize, which is awarded by a jury of music journalists and based strictly on merit, not sales.

K'naan, above, Metric, top right, and Joel Plaskett, right, are among the ten acts up for the Polaris Music Prize, which will be handed out at a gala ceremony tonight in Toronto. The event will be broadcast live on CBC Radio 3 (radio3.cbc.ca) at 8 p.m.

The Polaris newcomers, then, can't be blamed for feeling like they might be standing on the outside looking in.

"We're not thinking about it too much because it's likely we won't finish first," said Casey Laforet, guitarist for Toronto alt-country outfit Elliott Brood, nominated for Mountain Meadows.

Even K'naan doesn't sound particularly optimistic about his chances.

"I'm always very skeptical about those things," K'naan said. "I really never think I'm going to win that stuff. It's more like: 'Cool, I'm on the list.'"

And it often does pay just to be nominated.

"To be in the Top 10 is a pretty great thing, 'cause it gets a lot of people talking about the record, and all the discussion happens about the merits of the record," Laforet said.

"We are getting a lot of emails and a lot of questions and our online store is doing well, people are downloading the stuff and all that."

Baker has also seen the boost from the Polaris plug.

"I think I've noticed the difference since we've been nominated," he said. "Every show we do there's a lot of people there. I know they all haven't seen us before. So I think it's helping already.

"Thanks, Polaris."

MuchMusic will broadcast the Polaris Music Prize Gala on Saturday.

There are other contenders. F—ed Up — first-time nominees — have to be in the mix for their critically beloved disc, The Chemistry of Common Life.

That record — a groundbreaking mix of hardcore aggression, shimmering pop and meticulous craft — was among the Top 20 best-reviewed albums by any artist from any country last year, according to online review aggregator Metacritic.

And, while it won't factor into jurors' decision, awarding a band with an expletive in its name would have the added benefit of further cementing the Polaris's indie cred (while creating a headache for mainstream news outlets).

Metric, too, can't be counted out — they have one of the most commercially successful albums on the short list in Fantasies, a record that many critics also saw as their strongest work to date.

Toronto's Great Lake Swimmers are also nominated for their fourth album, Lost Channels.

At this point, it's tough to predict who will claim the prize.

"It depends on who's on that jury," Laforet said.

"It depends who votes and what they like, and how much they've been paid off. So we've gotta save up some cash and start doing some payouts. Twenty grand can go a long way if you spread it out ahead of time."

Precious, Cairo nab wins

A raw film about an abused teen named Precious won the audience choice award on the last day of the Toronto International Film Festival on Saturday, stoking predictions that the harrowing, Oprah Winfrey-backed tale is Oscar-bound.

Precious: Based on the Novel Push by Sapphire, snagged the coveted award at a luncheon that also named Cairo Time, from Toronto director Ruba Nadda, the best Canadian feature.

The win for Precious follows a sensational debut earlier this year at Sundance, where the film claimed the grand jury and audience awards.

Piers Handling, co-director of the Toronto festival, said the movie's remarkable success is not unlike last year's surprise sensation, Slumdog Millionaire.

"I think people want to see real stories about real people who are being tested in some kind of way and at the end of the day, hopefully, come out at ahead of the game," said Handling.

The film revolves around an obese ghetto teen who has been impregnated for the second time by her father, and stars Gabourey (Gabby) Sidibe, Mo'Nique, Lenny Kravitz and Mariah Carey. Tyler Perry and Winfrey serve as executive producers.

"You feel for her — she's obviously a figure of great sympathy and at the end of the day she manages to overcome them, so it's a perfect film I think to have come out of the festival," Handling said of the film's downtrodden heroine.

"As I think about it, it probably bears a lot of resemblance to last year's Slumdog Millionaire."

DARREN CALABRESE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Laurie May, co-president of Maple Pictures, accepts the People's Choice Award on behalf of Lee Daniels for the film Precious: Based on the Novel Push by Sapphire on Saturday.

DARREN CALABRESE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ruba Nadda accepts the award for Best Canadian Feature Film for her film Cairo Time.

Slumdog Millionaire, an indie film set in the slums of Mumbai, came from virtually nowhere to claim the audience choice award in Toronto and went on to sweep the big categories at the Oscars.

The Toronto award includes a $15,000 cash prize, which was accepted on Precious's behalf by Laurie May, co-president of Maple Pictures.

"So far, we're two for two," boasted May, referring to the two-time audience win.

A free screening was held later that night in Toronto. Precious is set to be released in Canada on Nov. 20.

Other prizes handed out Saturday included a $15,000 award for best Canadian first feature film, which went to Quebec's Alexandre Franchi for The Wild Hunt, set in the fantasy-reality of a large role-playing game. The $10,000 award for best Canadian short film went to Pedro Pires for Danse Macabre, which was based on a concept by Robert Lepage.

Nadda, who gets $30,000 as part of the best Canadian feature prize for Cairo Time, said her film very nearly didn't get made.

She noted that roughly $1.5 million in funding fell through just two weeks before filming was to start in Egypt. She recalled getting the news from her producer saying the production, starring Patricia Clarkson and Tom McCamus, was dead.

"I went into shock and called him back and I was crying and I was like, 'I'm begging you, I'm begging you, I'm begging you — please figure this out," recalled Nadda, who also wrote the screenplay.

In 48 hours, they were back on track with the help of Telefilm.

"This is why I feel like I've won the lottery, I really have," said Nadda, who has made 18 films but makes her debut appearance at the fest with her tale about a married magazine editor who is tempted to have an affair. Cairo Time is due for release Oct. 9.

New award categories this year included a midnight madness prize, which went to Australian Sean Byrne's horror The Loved Ones, and a people's choice award for documentary films, which went to The Topp Twins from Winnipeg's Leanne Pooley.

The awards wrapped up 10 days of movie madness that included more than 300 projects and megastars including George Clooney, Matt Damon, Julianne Moore, Penelope Cruz and Nicolas Cage.

Saturday's closing night film was The Young Victoria starring Emily Blunt and directed by Jean-Marc Vallee, who helmed 2005's C.R.A.Z.Y. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Michael Moore

- Bright Star — Kiwi director Jane Campion (The Piano) makes a breathtaking return with this ethereal and earthy story of John Keats's love affair with Fanny Brawne.
- Capitalism: A Love Story — Two decades of kicking at the establishment culminates in Michael Moore's most focused work in years. It's nothing short of a rallying cry to replace rampant greed with the democracy that Americans profess to love so dearly.
- The Damned United — The based-on-a-true-story film of soccer manager Brian Clough's disastrous 44 days with Leeds United crackles with wit and energy and, despite its macho backdrop, proves to be a moving bromance.
- Daybreakers — This unusual vampire film turns the genre on its head by presenting night-dwellers as the majority of society and humans as the outsiders. Ethan Hawke applies a furrowed brow to his turn as vamp-with-a-conscience, but things thankfully never get too serious and the ensuing mayhem builds toward a fun — and bloody — payoff.
- Defendor — Not your average superhero tale. It's set in Hamilton, Ont., no less. Woody Harrelson plays a troubled man who believes he's a crime-fighting avenger, and has the black tights and duct-taped letter "D" on his shirt to prove it. His weaponry includes a handful of marbles, some bees in a jar and lime juice, but deftly drawn characters and smart twists reveal a much more nuanced tale than the slapstick premise would suggest.
- An Education — Newcomer Carey Mulligan sparkles in this stylish tale of a clever London schoolgirl caught under the spell of a mysterious older man (Peter Sarsgaard). With a knockout script from novelist Nick Hornby.
- Good Hair — In this rollicking documentary, comedian Chris Rock takes a look at the billion-dollar business of African-American hair care. While the film is informative and, yes, very funny, it's also surprisingly tender. Rock began the project after one of his two young daughters innocently asked him why she didn't have "good hair."
- The Joneses — This satire on consumerism starring Demi Moore and David Duchovny is hugely entertaining, with a clever premise supported by a terrific cast.
- The Trotsky — Jay Baruchel stars in this coming-of-age tale about an eccentric 17-year-old who believes he's the reincarnation of Bolshevik revolutionary Leon Trotsky. Baruchel's winning performance ignites a snappy script from writer-director Jacob Tierney.
- Up in the Air — Juno director Jason Reitman has come of age in this exquisitely crafted black comedy about corporate America. Bolstered by an excellent soundtrack and a startling show of vulnerability by George Clooney.

Former Miss World and Bollywood actress Priyanka Chopra stars in What's Your Raashee?

12 faces of superstar

Bollywood actress plays different roles in What's Your Raashee?

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

In the new romantic comedy, What's Your Raashee?, international superstar Priyanka Chopra takes on perhaps her greatest challenge yet — playing 12 different roles.

"This was hugely challenging," admitted the Bollywood star during a recent interview in Toronto. "More so because my director was very sure of the fact that he didn't want any outside aid in terms of prosthetics or in terms of special effects to make the girls look different … he wanted it to be their characteristics, their body language — they way they talked, behaved — to make them different which was a huge, huge challenge for me as an actor."

What's Your Raashee? opens in theatres Friday

What's been described as an "epic romantic comedy", the film (which opens in theatres this Friday), features Chopra as all twelve potential brides of a young man who struggles with his family's insistence he get married. Portraying the women — each born under a different astrological sign (raashee) — Chopra had to play everything from a serious, career-oriented third world nurse to a 15-year-old teenager.

> "(Playing 12 different roles) was hugely challenging."
> Priyanka Chopra

"It's easier playing an older character because we're always growing. You kind of know it projectory-wise," said Chopra. "But to play a younger character is very, very difficult and again, to make her real.

"Its fun watching people's reactions to the 15-year-old (character) but the funnest was the first girl (who appears in the movie) because she's a gawky kind of girl who's pretending to be really cool and she's probably never even worn a skirt in her life before."

Pulling off the 12 characters in What's Your Raashee? was certainly not the first big challenge for Chopra.

Having launched her career by winning the crown of Miss World in 2000, the stunning actress has since become a huge movie star in her native India. Now, with What's Your Raashee? making its debut in North America, she's proud to give western audiences a taste of Bollywood. So what's the one thing potential moviegoers should know about Bollywood films?

"The length," laughed Chopra, hinting that audiences should take note of the film's 192-minute stretch. "We make long movies."

The Boys are back

Trailer Park sequel 'darker' than TV series

It takes only minutes into the new Trailer Park Boys movie to see that the drug-addled gang of louts is headed right back to their harebrained, n'er-do-well ways — and back to a film-making formula they hope will be as successful as their last celluloid venture.

The opening moments of Trailer Park Boys: Countdown to Liquor Day show the usual cast of characters again being released from prison with promises they will reform their derelict ways and set themselves on the road to redemption, or at least stay out of the big house for awhile.

But seconds after tasting freedom, they're stealing a corrections van and holding up a liquor store — with cardboard boxes and welding masks as disguises — to secure some "startup" money for their next business venture.

It is the same framework that has spawned a devoted following across Canada and fed the series' wacky story lines for seven seasons on TV's Showcase.

"You don't understand. The liquor's calling the shots snow."
Lahey in the Trailer Park Boys sequel

Director Mike Clattenburg has described the tone of the film as a little darker than the TV series, but fans of the show won't be disappointed as it aptly captures the antics they've likely come to expect from the characters.

There is Julian, the brawny schemer who is never without a rum-and-coke in his clutches; Ricky, his profane, overweight sidekick who can't utter a sentence not laced with F-bombs; and Bubbles, the googlie-eyed heart and soul of the fictional Sunnyvale trailer park whose sole mission seems to be protecting his collection of kitties.

The movie picks up with the boys heading back to Sunnyvale, only to find it abandoned and battered after their archrival, park superintendent Jim Lahey, moved on to manage a pristine, orderly trailer home development.

Lahey, played by John Dunsworth, has cleaned up his act, gotten off the drink, taken to jogging and settled down with his shirtless, pot-bellied lover, Randy.

But as soon as the boys return, Lahey begins slipping into his old booze-soaked ways and is soon wandering around in a robe and tighty whities, with a bottle in tow.

"You don't understand," the character says in a desperate fit that references the movie's title. "The liquor's calling the shots now."

Countdown to Liquor Day' could be the last offering from the Gemini Award-winning cast that includes actors Mike Smith, John Paul Tremblay and Robb Wells. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Beyonce's show will go on

Beyonce Knowles says she will perform in Malaysia in October, two years after cancelling a show in this Muslim-majority country after protesters threatened to disrupt the concert because of her sexy image and clothing.

The R&B superstar's upcoming show is already drawing the ire of conservatives in this country, where female performers are required to cover up from the shoulders to knees with no cleavage showing.

Knowles said on her website that she will take the stage at a stadium in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia's biggest city, on Oct. 25. "Beyonce for the first time ever has decided to make Malaysia part of her I am. world tour," her website said.

Knowles cancelled a planned concert two years ago following protest threats by Malaysia's opposition Islamic party. At the time her talent agency said the show was called off due to a scheduling conflict.

Instead she went to Indonesia, which has less stringent rules about how performers should dress and behave.

Sabki Yusof, youth vice head of the Pan-Malaysian Islamic Party, said Sunday that they would send a protest note to the government over the concert. He said it was the government's "responsibility to protect the people of Malaysia" from what he described as immoral Western influences.

"We are not against entertainment as long as it is within the framework of our culture and our religion," Sabki said. "We are against Western sexy performances. We don't think our people need that."

Jackson's estate battle clears step

COURT Katherine Jackson's attorney says a judge's ruling that she can challenge the administrators of her son's estate could result in a deal that will determine control of the singer's gargantuan assets.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Mitchell Beckloff determined in a ruling released Friday that Michael Jackson's mother can argue against keeping the men administering her son's estate without being disinherited.

Beckloff's ruling clears the way for further arguments and possibly a hearing on whether the men were best suited to control Jackson's considerable estate. The pair have already brokered deals for a movie, books, museum show and various memorabilia that are expected to generate tens of millions of dollars. Katherine Jackson's legal team, however, has sought to challenge one or both of the men's authority. Most of Katherine Jackson's arguments for why she should be allowed to challenge the authority have been sealed, but Beckloff noted in his ruling that they raised several issues.

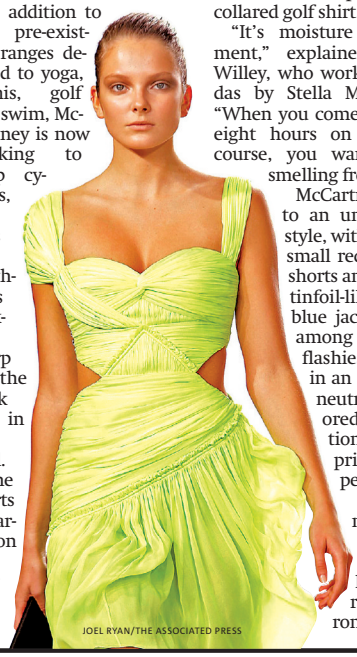
McCartney focuses on fashionable athletic wear

Breathable, lightweight fabrics aimed for comfort

Stella McCartney's sportswear franchise is saddling up to take on the cycling world.

The British designer may be better known for her tops and dresses, but her activewear "adidas by Stella McCartney" concept has been going strong since 2005.

In addition to her pre-existing ranges devoted to yoga, tennis, golf and swim, McCartney is now working to keep cyclists, runners and triathletes looking sharp on the track and in the pool.



JOEL RYAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The sports apparel on display yesterday at London's Somerset House was made from lightweight, breathable fabrics designed with comfort — and perspiration — in mind.

Mesh was nearly everywhere: In wide loops lining the side of a gym shoe or tightly wound into a poly-cotton collared golf shirt.

"It's moisture management," explained Emma Willey, who works for adidas by Stella McCartney. "When you come out after eight hours on the golf course, you want to be smelling fresh."

McCartney kept to an understated style, with a pair of small red running shorts and a shiny, tinfoil-like pool blue jacket being among the flashiest pieces in an otherwise neutral-colored collection. Zebra print was pervasive.

McCartney says she tries to keep her materials environmentally friendly and ethically sourced. Apparel on display included clothes constructed out of organic cotton and recycled polyester, and shoes built with recycled rubber and wood pulp insoles.

Yesterday, the third day of London Fashion Week, also featured shows by Betty Jackson, Nicole Farhi, Jasper Conran, and British fashion icon Vivienne Westwood.

Disney chief steps down

The Walt Disney Co. is searching for a new studio chief to take the reins following the abrupt resignation Friday of longtime executive Dick Cook.

After nearly four decades with the company, Cook announced Friday that he was stepping down immediately.

In a statement, Cook said, "I have been contemplating this for some time now and feel it's the right time for me to move on to new adventures and in the words of one of my baseball heroes, Yogi Berra, 'If you come to a fork in the road, take it.'"

Cook joined Disney in 1971 and moved up the ranks, becoming president of Buena Vista Pictures distribution in 1988. He became chairman of the studio in 2002.

Dick Cook

"I have loved every minute of my 38 years that I have worked at Disney, from the beginning as a ride operator on Disneyland's steam train and monorail to my position as chairman of the Walt Disney Studios," he said.

The studio's recent movies, like Race to Witch Mountain, Bedtime Stories and Confessions of a Shopaholic were box office disappointments. However Cook said he believed that the studio's slate of upcoming movies is the best in its history.

Bob Iger, president and chief executive officer of the Walt Disney Co., praised Cook's work for the studio. "Throughout his distinguished 38-year Disney career, Dick Cook's outstanding creative instincts and incomparable showmanship have truly enriched this company and significantly impacted Disney's great legacy," Iger said. "We thank Dick for his tremendous passion for Disney, and his many accomplishments and contributions to the Walt Disney Studios, including a very promising upcoming film slate."

Things are complicated for Avril

COLD FEET? Avril Lavigne and Deryck Whibley, who announced their split on Thursday, seemed like the perfect rock couple. But at the age of 24, Lavigne began to see things differently, sources tell People.

"She married too young and she finally realized that," said a source. "Avril realized she needs her own life and needs to explore things without him."

The couple married in 2006, when Lavigne was 21. Though it's over, Lavigne says she's "grateful for our time together, and I am grateful and blessed for our remaining friendship," she wrote on her website.

Another source close to the couple says they were having serious problems for at least six months. But, the source states, the split is "not about Deryck wanting a kid nor is she dating anyone else."

Lavigne was spotted partying in the French Riviera night after night on oil heir Brandon Davis' rented yacht, according to a Page Six source: "She was seen downing shots, drinking booze from the bottle and play-fighting men on the beach ... She wasn't acting like a married woman at all."

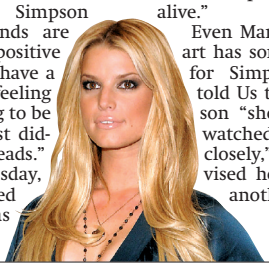
Jessica gives up hunt for Daisy

HOPELESS Jessica Simpson doesn't have much hope she'll find for her pooch Daisy, who was snatched from her backyard by a coyote last Monday, usmagazine.com reports.

A rep for findtoto.com — which called 1,000 of the singer's neighbours to help find the five-year-old maltipoo earlier this week — tells usmagazine.com they've called off the search.

"We've actually discontinued the search entirely," the company's spokeswoman, Colleen Busch, told Us. "We've contacted Jessica and asked them if they want us to put out more Findtoto alerts, and they don't."



Busch said Simpson and her friends are "trying to be positive but they just have a pretty strong feeling she isn't going to be found. We just didn't get any leads."

On Wednesday, Simpson posted that she was "still holding out hope" of finding her pup — a gift from exhusband Nick Lachey — even though celeb dog trainer Jennifer McCarthy told Us "she's probably not alive."

Even Martha Stewart has some advice for Simpson. She told Us that Simpson "should have watched it more closely," and advised her to "get another dog."

Tragedy spurs Nicole to marry?

PUTTING THINGS IN PERSPECTIVE Nicole Richie wants to marry Joel Madden, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The reality TV star — who has a 20-month-old daughter Harlow and newborn son Sparrow with the rocker — has been deeply affected by the death last month of her ex-fiancé Adam (DJ AM) Goldstein, and is keen for her and Madden to commit to one another forever.

A source told National Enquirer magazine: "Nicole has never been in a rush to get married to Joel. She's so happy with him and their little family that she didn't feel the need to change the way things were between them.

"But when Adam died, she freaked out. She realized life is fragile and short. She doesn't want to have any regrets at all, and she does want to be Joel's wife."

Taylor to write Kanye diss track?

GETTING EVEN Could Taylor Swift write a song about Kanye West's VMA ambush? When asked by Ryan Seacrest recently, the 19-year-old says she might — but not until she's recovered from the incident, usmagazine.com reports.

"Well, I think that in order to write a song about something, I have to have clarity and be completely sure and I'm not there yet," she said on Seacrest's KIIS-FM radio show Friday. It wouldn't be the first time the songwriter drew from her own life experiences.

Last year, she released the track, Forever & Always, about her breakup with Joe Jonas.

Her moment at the VMAs also brought her new fans.

"I got flowers from Janet Jackson!" Swift said. "It was the nicest card ever — I took a picture of it! ... Everyone was really sweet to me this week."

Khloe's quickie wedding?

RUSHING THINGS? Though Khloe Kardashian and L.A. Lakers forward Lamar Odom have only been dating for a month, they're already planning their wedding, popeater.com cites several media outlets as reporting.

"Khloe and Lamar want to get married before Lamar has to go away for training, and the (basketball) season starts up (this fall). They are hoping to pull together a wedding within the next two weeks so they can get married and have time for a honeymoon," the source said.

"They haven't decided where they will say 'I Do,' but they are scouting out numerous locations, including Khloe's family home in Calabasas, (Calif.)"

E! News reported Thursday night that Khloe, 25, and her basketball beau, 29, have recently been "talking about rings."

Meet the proud parents

LIFE WITH KIDS Josh Kelley is one proud papa, people.com reports.

"We adopted a baby from Korea, me and my girl, and she's awesome, dude! This girl is the bomb!" the singer, who's married to actress Katherine Heigl, gushed at a concert Friday night in Oxford, Ohio.

The couple posted a photo of their adopted daughter from Korea last week. They named her Nancy Leigh — after Heigl's mother Nancy and sister Margaret Leigh — but call her by her nickname Naleigh.

At his show at Miami University, Kelley introduced a song he had just written about Naleigh, singing the lines, "Just to see you in mommy's arms is all I need."

"It's like I have Gerber all over my knee," Kelley told the audience, "and it doesn't even matter, I love it."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Baked Chicken and Acorn Squash

INGREDIENTS:

2 small acorn squash (1 ¼ lbs/625 g)
2 to 4 garlic cloves, minced
2 tbsp (25 ml) canola oil, divided
4 chicken drumsticks
4 chicken thighs
1/4 cup (50 ml) packed brown sugar
1 tsp (5 ml) salt
1 tbsp (15 ml) minced fresh rosemary or 1 tsp (5 ml) dried rosemary, crushed
1 can sliced peaches, undrained

METHOD:

1. Cut squash in half lengthwise; discard seeds. Cut each half widthwise into 1/2-in. (1 cm) slices; discard ends. Place slices in an ungreased 13-in. x 9-in. x 2-in. (33 cm x 23 cm x 5 cm) baking dish. Sprinkle with garlic and drizzle with 1 tbsp (15 mL) oil.
2. In a large skillet, brown chicken in remaining oil. Arrange chicken over squash. Combine brown sugar, salt and rosemary; sprinkle over chicken. Bake, uncovered, at 350°F (180°C) 45 minutes, basting with pan juices twice.
3. Pour peaches over chicken and squash. Bake, uncovered, 15 minutes longer or until chicken juices run clear and peaches are heated through.
